Some envious (ſpeaking in their own Renown)
Say that my Book was not exactly done:
They wrong me; Yet like Feaſts I'd have my Books
Rather be pleaſing to the Gueſts than Cooks.
Ill thrives that hapleſs Family that ſhows
A Cock that's ſilent, and a Hen that crows:
I know not which lives more unnatural Lives,
Obeying Husbands, or commanding Wives.

S---- l the Smith hath lately ſworn and ſaid,
That no Diſeaſe ſhall make him keep his Bed;
His reaſon is, I now begin to ſmell it,
He wants more Rum, and muſt be forc'd to ſell it.
Nor leſs meant J----h when that Vow he made.
Than to give o'er his couſening Tapſter's Trade,
Who, check'd for ſhort and frothy Meaſure, ſwore
He never would from thenceforth fill Pot more.
